John Jordan, Jr., came near having a serious accident Saturday evening. He was driving a team attached to a hay baler, when the front wheels dropped into a hole, causing the carriage to roll forward, pushing him off just in front of the wheels which, if the team had not stopped just as they did, would no doubt crushed both legs, as the baler weighs about 3000 pounds.

A Remarkable Cause For Action. From a remarkable case heard in the Oban small debt court the other day I gather that a belief in witchcraft is still more or less prevalent in the highlands. One dairyman named Campbell sued another named Black for damages which he alleged he had sustained in his character and reputation in consequence of the defender having asserted that "he had an evil eye," and that with this wicked organ he had injured two cows by "upsetting" and "felling" them. I am glad to say that the Scotch law does not recognize this cause of action, and the sheriff dismissed the case. Are there no schools in Oban to root out such dense ignorance!-

London Truth. Francis Marion's Sword.

While at the capitol in Columbia a few days ago a visitor saw the sword of Francis Marion. "It had parted company with its sheath; a part of the ivory hilt was gone; the blade was badly rust eaten. He was subsequently told that the clerks in the office of the secretary of state slice watermelons with it!" should like to have Attorney General Townsend's opinion on this matter if the facts are as stated. It is true that Marion's sword would last a long time, even if it were employed every summer to alice watermelons with, but that is scarcely a proper use to make of the old waspen when a caselonife would be seen that the second waspen when a caselonife would be seen to be seen t weapon when a caseknife would serve just as well. FROM AUMSVILLE.

Everybody is smiling. The "Outs" bave won, and the "Ins" don't care. Last Thursday it was whispered that the "county superintendent of public instruction" would be in Aumsville, to locate the school house "site" again. The good people had located it every tenth day, but it would not stay located. At the appointed time the great man came, and met our educated board. Both parties made a favorable impression, and every member of the board tried to impress the superintendent The Oregonian comments on the fact favorably. Settling a Question of Age.

There had been a golden wedding in the neighborhood the evening before, A great calm has come over our city. and the children had been amicably discussing the festivities of the occasion as handed down to them in the recitals of their older brothers and sisters. Suddenly there was the confused sound of a long and eager argument, and the mother quietly stepped to the window, thinking that if the quarrel on the piazza grew too serious she must interfere. This is what she heard:

"They don't have to have it until they are 75, 'cause grandma and grandpa didn't till they were ever so old.

"Yes, they do, too," was the combined reply of the other family of children. "They have it when they're 50 years

"No, they don't have to be 50 years old. They only have to be married 50

"How d' you know?" "Why, by the ages of us children of course. There's John, he's 18; there's Jessie, 16; there's Ralph, 13, and Emily, 9, and Jimmy, 6. There, how many ears old does that make?"

"Sixty-two," triumphantly announced one of the children of the winning side.

"Didn't I tell you so?" "Now reckon up how old my papa is," said the eldest of their crestfallen opponents. "I'm 13, Bess is 11, Marion is 9 and Edie is 6." "Goin on 7," corrected one of the younger children, with the assertive truthfulness of childhood,

"Now you see that only makes your papa 39, not half so old as ours!" "Hooray!" cried little Jimmie of the victorious family, turning almost continuous somersaults in his delight. "My papa's the oldest! My papa's the oldest, and he's had his golden wedding long ago, and yours can't have one for ever

Rats as Pets.

The white rat is often kept by boys more, however, as a curiosity than as a pet and always under protest from their mothers. But boys lose interest and do not like care, so the poor creature is apt to be neglected and become an offense in the household. This need never occur with any rat that is cared for, especially if he is not confined to a close cage. The white rat is neither so intelligent nor, in my opinion, so pretty as his brown relative. The black and white rat of Japan is sometimes seen in our country, and he is said to resemble our own rats in his characteristics.-Harper's Bazar.

A Race Between Pigeons and Bees. An aviculturist of Westphalia latey made a bet that 12 bees, released at a distance of three miles from the hives at the same time as 12 pigeons, would travel over the ground as quickly as the birds. The first bee entered the hive one-quarter of a minute before the first pigeou reached its columbary. Three other bees arrived before the second pigeon, and the remainder of the competitors reached home simultaneously.

Nature gives to every time and season some beauties of its own, and from morning to night, as from the cradle to the grave, is but a succession of changes so gentle and easy that we can scarcely mark their progress. -Dickens.

The diamond is not among the earliest gems known to man. It has not been found in the ruins of Nineveh, in the Etruscan sepulchers nor n the tombs of the Phœnicians.

What the Girls Will Do.

Out of a class of eight young women graduated at Barnard college in June, only two have studied with the intention of teaching. Of the 116 taking their degrees at Smith's college, 50 are to teach. Many of the 113 graduates at Wellesley, Mass., and one-fourth of the class at Bryn Mawr will also teach. The normal class of domestic science at Pratt's institute has already found positions for its graduates, one of whom is to teach cookery in a large reform school for girls and to see that nutritious diet is provided for her pupils.
